Judy was my SIS; and I've known her and loved her for a very long time, will love her as long as I live, and hopefully, we'll share our sisterly love in eternity. A great lady, wife, mother, grandmother, author, editor, educator, poet, and publisher. That was my friend Judy Stock. Her legacy will live on. With love, Marilyn Hope Lake

Ripples, for Judy It is incumbent upon us, (no, it is our honor and destiny) to be the stone that creates ripples that will last long after we ourselves have disappeared from view. We are the poets, the painters, the photographers, the storytellers... the creators of long enduring waves for the people around us to feel and enjoy and recreate in their own image. We do this by focusing our stone's throw, our efforts, on the beauty of truth - using our grace, our faith, and our knowledge of love. What we create goes over, around and through... touching every other being in our little ponds. Our ripples swirl... reacting and responding to the changes that come before them. Those ripples change and grow and transform, acting of their own volition once started. How will your ripples begin?

My dear friend Judy Stock passed away yesterday. She was not just a beloved friend, but my mentor, editor and publisher. I had never met her, but there were no gaps between Missouri and New York when it came to love. A simple internet connection allowed us to exchange years of poetry... each piece extolling lives filled with our trials, tribulations, heartaches and joys. She was a precious soul. She valued God, her family, her friends, and the written word. The world was a better place for her, (whether you knew her or not...) and was certainly blessed by her presence. I hope her life's meaning will ripple and resonate for generations to come. I love you always, Judy. xoxo HUGS Valeri Feinbloom aka Valeri Paxton-Steele (valeripaxtonsteele@gmail.com)
